“Dr. Fowler contributed to the training of numerous residents over the years. He taught us to be calm, competent, and compassionate and truly led by example. While he often followed the KISS principle (Keep It Simple Stupid), he was never shy to tackle something new or innovative. His contributions to the various ACVS committees is another example of his commitment to his specialty.”

What being a mentor means to me:

David J. Fowler, DVM, MVSc, DACVS

“One highlight of a very rewarding career has been the opportunity to work with and mentor fellow surgeons through their residency training programs. My passion for veterinary surgery has been perpetually enlivened through interactions with young surgeons as they gain skills, confidence, and knowledge that exceed my greatest expectations. I am truly honored to receive acknowledgement that I have played a role in helping others to realize the many rewards this specialty has to offer.”
