

FLINT ANIMAL CANCER CENTER

COLORADO STATE UNIVERSITY

SURGICAL ONCOLOGY POSTDOCTORAL FELLOWSHIP

The Flint Animal Cancer Center and the Clinical Oncology Service at Colorado State University are offering two ACVS Fellowships in Surgical Oncology (www.csuanimalcancercenter.org). The training program is designed for veterinarians who have completed a 3-year ACVS approved residency in small animal surgery. The 54-week appointment will consist of 42 weeks of clinic duties, with 8 weeks off to study for ACVS boards and 2 to 4 weeks for independent rotations in areas of surgical oncology. The 35,000 square foot Flint Animal Cancer Center (FACC) is a research and cancer affinity facility adjoined to the Veterinary Teaching Hospital which houses oncology personnel and operations. Research within the FACC includes: tumor markers, drug delivery systems, immunotherapy, preclinical drug testing, pharmacology, gene therapy, oncogenesis, metastasis, radiation therapy, pathology, osteogenesis, stem cell research, infection, and clinical oncology research. The robust Clinical Oncology Service (composed of surgical oncologists, medical oncologists, radiation oncologists, and clinical trials) contributes to over 25% of the small animal veterinary teaching hospital caseload annually, providing for ample training opportunities and operates in a spacious state-of-the-art clinical space with cutting edge clinical tools.

The salary will be $65,000 per fellow and the appointment is for 54-weeks. Additional non-salary support is provided to ensure trainees' success including coverage for ACVS fellowship fees, conference travel, and or long-distance out-rotations. The proposed starting date is on or about July 29, 2024. Interested applicants are to submit a cover letter, a curriculum vitae or resume, and three names of references to: <https://jobs.colostate.edu/postings/130684> Please also email your intent to apply to Drs. Tremolada (giovanni.tremolada@colostate.edu) or Worley (deanna.worley@colostate.edu). References will not be contacted without prior notification of candidates. Applications must be received by January 22, 2024, to receive full consideration. Compliant with Colorado State University rules of employment, the successful candidate must be eligible to work in the United States by the expected start date. Candidates who have completed an ECVS approved residency may also apply. Support of an H1B visa is also possible for the right candidate.
